Abstract. In chemical processing units, optimization is the method that seeks to solve the problem of minimizing or maximizing an objective function that relates the variable to optimize with the design and operating variables. The criteria for analysis of the economic objective function involve fulfilling a process criteria restrictions, conditions,...

OPTIMIZATION OF CHEMICAL PROCESS. The optimization of chemical process begins by sizing the various equipment in the chain in a manner that the capacity of a given process equipment in the chain like the Dryer , for example, is so chosen that its capacity matches the output from the equipment upstream, filter in this case.
